

Thriving in the Culture of Success

Unlocking the door to your future success

High School Diploma

On the job training,

Success, My future story

The Culture of Success

The culture of success is one in which I can find a job and maintain it in order to provide support for my life needs and those of my family.

There are different ways to enter into the culture of success. On the job training, technical or trade school, military, and college are just a few.

Earning a high school diploma is a crucial key necessary to unlock entry into the culture of success.

Culture of Success:

I have to follow directions that my boss gives me. Even if I think they are wrong.
If I choose not to, I can be fired.

At School:

I will do what an adult tells me, even if I think they are wrong, unless they are telling me to harm myself or someone else.

If I disagree with the teacher, I should do what they say then speak to the principal or assistant principal and my parents.

Culture of Success:

If I get into a fight at work, I will likely be fired. No matter who starts the fight.

At School:

It is not appropriate for me to put my hands on another student for any reason. If I choose to do so, I may receive a consequence.

If someone puts their hands on me or is being aggressive towards me, I should tell an adult.

Culture of Success:

In the workplace, I can be fired for discussing someone else's race, gender, body parts, disability, or sexual orientation.

At School:

I will not discuss the race, gender, body parts, disability, or sexual orientation of someone else.

I will not use negative words or language that refer to the race, gender, body parts, disability, or sexual orientation of someone else.

What you need to know about ATTENDANCE

Attendance is taken EVERY period. (Forget the 10 o'clock stuff)

Arriving late or picking up early will cause absenteeism (parts of days).

We track, report and file truancy.

Students will attend summer school or be retained for missing too many days.

Withdrawing your kid due to truancy is not the answer. We want to help them enjoy their time here. We want to help you get them here. We are here to help.
